Between Us..

RUTH BEAVER

Once more the streets are crowded with summer school students who are enrolled at the college for the first summer session. We are always happy to have these young people, and they add much to our community. While they are here with us, don't pass them up as they thumb ride back to school after a shopping spree into town; that's a small way we can let them know we are glad to have them, and we appreciate their business. Surely not many people have been made happier recently by the coming of the summer school students. Recently his parents gave him a beautiful new grand piano, and we are sure with this as an incentive he will not have to be reminded to practice. Two of our young girls are off to camp for several weeks. Jane Morris and Lynn Smith will soon be leaving for Camp Tonaquanda, just outside of Haverhill, N. C. From the folders describing this camp, it has everything a young girl could desire, and they are looking forward to the day they will be leaving. Betty Brannen and her mother, Edna, send together on the street one morning one week both dressed in crisp starched white cottons. By the way, Betty is enrolled at the University of Georgia, and her mother, Edna, is a visitor in town now in Carolyn Blitch, who came from West Palm Beach to visit her mother, Lottie.
